You're in a karaoke spot with your friends and one of them (maybe even you) chooses a song that's too hard for them. They slaughter him and it's so painful to watch him. The audience actually feels uncomfortable just to witness this disaster, not to mention how the real singer feels. Don't be that person. Select the right songs. The best karaoke songs fit your vocal style and are easy songs to sing. Even better, if they are songs with high energy, people know and love. Nothing helps you more as a singer than having a crowd performing. You feed off their energy and get even better. Then you leave the stage star. It's karaoke magic. And here's a long list of the best karaoke songs (with lyrics - just follow the links) that will take you there. Practice those at home, then nail them and take them off the house on your next karaoke (or video) night! Easy songs to sing that are always hit If always considered a bad singer, but you make up for it with energy and these are good songs to sing. All are easy karaoke songs, but fun songs to sing that everyone knows and loves. The Rolling Stones — (I can't get no) Satisfaction It's a simple song that's almost monotonous but also energetic and certainly to include the crowd. It's one of the best songs out there. Everyone knows it and you will almost certainly get a lot of people joining the chorus. This is a classic karaoke song certainly one of the most popular easy singing songs for boys. The text is here. Joan Jett and Blackhearts - I Love Rock & R and This song is all about attitude and strength. If you have the right attitude, it's one of the best karaoke songs that's ever been, which is why it's been so popular for so long. It helps that it is very easy to sing. The text here. Jitus — Teenage Saliva If you've seen any teen movies since the early 2000s or any newer teen movies set in the early 2000s, you've heard that song. It was everywhere. It's also one of my favorite karaoke songs, as it's manly, playful and another one of those that easily sings karaoke songs for boys. The text is here. Pharrell Williams - Happy Happy is as pleased as the song can get and always lighten the mood. It's easy to sing, although Williams' high range can be a problem for many men. Therefore, it is definitely not one of the easiest karaoke songs to sing for boys. Fortunately, you can simply eat it in a lower range. If you really want to cheer up the crowd, dance like crazy while you sing. It's also a song. The text is here. Green Day — A Song for Broken Dreams No Green Day is all that's hard to sing and most are good karaoke songs. I chose this one because I like it. And most people feel that way, so you'll certainly get a good reaction to that choice. The text is here. George Michael — Faith It's an easy song to sing and while it's always been a popular karaoke song, it will be particularly popular over the next few months due to its recent death. This will only score you some bonus points, even if you are the worst singer in the world. The text is here. Nirvana - In bloom, I know: Smell is like a teenager. But Nirvana had many other songs where Cobain didn't torment and/or scream every word, making them easier to sing and perhaps more enjoyable for your audience. Try this one, or maybe you'll come like you if you prefer this. The text is here. Des'ree — You have to sing the song in a low voice and with limited range, making it easy for everyone to sing. It's not as energetic as many other songs on this list, but overall it's still going well. And everyone knows the chorus. The text is here. Susannah Vega — The voice of Tom Dineer Vega barely changes tone here, making this one of the easiest nail songs, period. This is probably not as well known as most of the others on this list (when it comes to karaoke anyway), this makes him a better choice to sing, in my opinion. The text is here. Red Hot Chile Chile — Danny California RHCP has a lot of great karaoke songs and I could put them here (and I did, including Love Roller Coast in the duet section below), but I went with Danny California because it's my favorite. It's also great for karaoke: it's not too hard, playful and most people know it. The text is here. Chumbawamba — Tubatumping (I Knocked Down) This song has several lyrics and almost no real singing parts. It's so easy, but the bribery is huge. Everyone will join, although no one admits to liking him. It's the easiest way to be a karaoke hit. It's so easy, catfish actually thinks it's a scam to sing Brickling. The text is here. Ancest - Hey Ya! If you're going to sing a song for Outkast, you're definitely going to pick one where Andre doesn't rap. Very few people can keep it up to date. This song, however, is quite simple. And there's barely a text. This is definitely one of the easiest ways to get a karaoke bar going. The text is here. Smashmouth — All Stars This song is one of the most popular karaoke songs. It's simple, and everyone knows it. That said, Walking in the Sun is a much better Smashmouth song and I recommend trying this one. I included it below in the section for less common karaoke songs. As for the All Stars, here you will find the lyrics of the song (as if you don't know them anymore). The best karaoke songs for women Yes, I included a section with songs specifically for the ladies and I do not have the corresponding section for boys. I am sorry. But most songs are good for boys to sing and I just wanted to highlight some of the best karaoke songs from strong women, to strong women. No doubt — Hella well when someone sings without a doubt, it's either Don't Talk, Spiderwebs or maybe just a girl. Why aren't you different? With Hella Ok, No doubt moved away from her ska roots and rose a little less. Of all the songs, it will make the crowd cope the most and it is easiest to sing. Lyrics here. Rubbish — A stupid girl I could put in the trash. Vocally, they're all easy to sing. The key to every song out of the trash is Shirley Manson's attitude. If you can compare yourself (or even just get close) to Shirley, you'll be a huge hit. You're glad he doesn't sing with his Scottish accent. The text is here. Vests — Lovefool If you are old enough, you will remember that this song was absolutely everywhere in 1996 and 1997. This Swedish pop tune is as sweet and innocent as the song can get and is sung in a fairly narrow range. It's not hard and will bring back a lot of memories if your audience is big enough. It's also a great song to sing to your girlfriend, for all these romantic men and women who want to get infected with their girl. The text is here. Vanessa Carlton — White Houses I know that a thousand miles is much more famous and very popular as a karaoke song. It's also easier to sing. But I chose the White House for this list because it means more to me. It reminds me of college, and I hang out with you. Girlfriends. The lyrics speak to us more than any other song back then. It is quite high with this song, but if you have a higher range, it is not too difficult. The text is here. Child of Destiny - Independent Women Yes, before Beyoncé ruled the music world, she was only part of the musical trio, albeit the most important part and the only one that doesn't spin all the time. This song is a little more challenging than some of the others on this list, but it's fun, hooking and definitely empowering. The text is here. Wilson Phillips - Hold On This Song was released in 1990, but enjoyed a huge resurgence in popularity due to the 2011 film Bridesmaids. It's a carefree song with no hard parts and incredibly playful people. You won't be the only one singing. The text is here. TLC — No Scrubs This classic girl-power anthem has a fairly narrow range and is easy to sing. There's even a rap part you can have fun with. Put friends into the action by getting them to kick everyone out, not for you. The text is here. Fiona Apple - Criminal Apple sings this song in a low vocal range that most women can imitate quite easily. At least at first. It gets a little more challenging towards the end, but it's worth the effort. True, it's a bit of a dark song, but there's also a more fervent pace, which makes it a hit with every crowd. The text is here. Shania Twain, man! I feel like a woman! Even if you don't like country music, it's enough for a crossover song that anyone can enjoy it. It's not very hard to sing and fight. If you nail the attitude, you'll have the whole bar rocking. The text is here. The best karaoke duets Good karaoke songs for two are hard to find. That's not because there are no good duets out there; this is because most of them are quite difficult to sing. How many of us can come close to the perfection of these two. I managed to find a few that are not too hard and are good songs to sing for two people. Olivia Newton John and John Travolta - Summer Nights Absolutely everyone knows this song from the film Grease, so even if you're alone, you won't have a problem finding someone to partner with for this duet. And everyone in the ears will join in singing tell me more, tell me more... Part. Text here. B52 - Love Shack Another song in which everyone can join the chorus. If you sing the part, try imitating his unique voice and accent. The crowd will love that. As for the difficulties: there are none. The text is here. Jennifer also warns Bill Medley - (I've had) The time of my life Many of the classic duets come from soundtracks and this song from the film Dirty Dancing may be the most famous of all (OK, after Grease). This is not the easiest song to sing, but it is simpler than most duets and absolutely everyone knows the song. The text is here. Club Nouveau - Count on me This is a great song if one person who can sing and one who can not. The less talented can take the poems and the better singer can handle the chorus. Unless everyone is already drunk: then it doesn't matter. The text is here. Len - Steal My Sunshine Let's just get out of the way: it's a bad song. There are a few songs on this list that aren't the biggest, but it's probably the worst of them all. But if you have a room full of drunk people and you want a song for two that's going to get the audience involved, that'll do. The text is here. Red Hot Chili Peppers - Love Roller Coaster This may not be your standard duet song, but it works. One can sing a choir and the other can handle male interruptions and pseudo-rap. It's a very energetic song that doesn't cause any challenges. That's the perfect karaoke song. The text is here. Less prevalent songs that your audience will like These are fun karaoke songs that you don't hear as often as those above, but they're just as good, if not better. Take off one of these and you'll win a lot of fans. People like to remember the songs they listened to all the time, but they've forgotten about it over the years. Cranberries - dreams Yes, I am aware of a zombie. It's great and one of the most popular karaoke songs out there. But it's a great song, too. Give it a shot; it's sure to be a hit. And while you miss the parts where O'Riordan violin (or try them; whether you nail them or fail, the crowd will enjoy the effort), it's actually easier to sing than Zombie. The text is here. Weezer - Buddy Holly, I would have chosen For this list because it's a more energetic song, but his phallus is impossible for most guys. This song is much easier and almost as hooked. And everyone loves Weser, so you can choose one of their songs. The text is here. Smashmouth - Walkin On The Sun I turned on The Emsmuth All Stars upstairs because I felt that way, but it's their best song. It's not that easy to sing, but it still doesn't pose real challenges. And it's incredibly playful. The text is here. Johnny Cash - Ring of Fire Quite a lot every Johnny Cash tune is a great karaoke song, because none of them are difficult. I chose the Ring of Fire because it is the most famous. It may be a bit low-energy for some, but most karaoke nights end with one ballad after another, so it actually makes for a nice change of pace. The text is here. Peter Gabriel - Steam This song is a little harder than most of the others on this list, but it's not something you hear much about karaoke. Anyone over a certain age remembers it, so it will always go well. The hammer is another big karaoke song from Gabrielle, but not easier. The text is here. Alien Ant Farm - Smooth Crime Apparently, Michael Jackson's original is more famous, but this one is much easier to sing. And everyone sings Michael Jackson. How many people sang about Alien Ant Farm? The text is here. Kenny Rogers - is one of the best karaoke songs for a room full of guys towards the end of the evening, when everyone had a lot to drink and they have already passed the standard list of ballads (I notice that there is no Journey on this list). Let's replace it with kenny rogers' song. If you're out with a lot of Big Lebowski fans, try Just come by instead of Gambolov. The text is here. Filter - Hey Man, Nice Shot If you want to do a few screaming, this song about a politician's suicide on TV gives you a chance to do just that. It's a fun karaoke song, but if you'd rather try a filter song with less screaming and more singing (and more challenging as a result), try Get A Picture. The text is here. Kat Stevens - Wild World Another good karaoke song for the end of the evening after things got softer. It's not a difficult song and has already been covered by countless artists, so you can add your own date to the mix. The text is here. The Frog - Possum Kingdom This song does not present too many challenges for singing. If you can take turns talking and screaming, you can nail that song. It's not what you call the best karaoke song. You may get a crowd of people who don't know it, but I guarantee you'll want to know it pretty quickly and will almost certainly join in during You Want to Die? Part. The text here. Best karaoke songs: Final thoughts I realized while writing this post that I could keep listing songs forever. There are so many popular karaoke songs out there and so many others that are not so popular, but are still great songs and tons of fun to sing. I recommend choosing one or two of your favorites and practicing them at home. I wrote a post full of techniques to improve your voice, which can be worth a look. You can apply some of the tips in this post instantly and sound better today. If you want it to sound professional, you might even consider an online singing course or vocal coach. Once you feel comfortable singing your songs at home, it's time to debut them in front of your friends. They'll be amazed at how great it suddenly sounds! Sound!
